2023 Poultry Worker of the Year Nomination Form Deadline for Submissions is August 14, 2023.

Award to be tentatively Presented at PIC's Innovation Conference November 14, 2023

Annually, the Poultry Industry Council recognizes an individual who has made a significant contribution to the poultry industry. The criteria are very broad. Quite simply the award will be presented to an individual who has given outstanding service to the poultry industry over the years. The person may have made a significant and lasting difference or some specific contribution or may simply have vast networks and has maintained these over the years which as a result has moved the industry forward.

To nominate an individual who you feel is deserving of this prestigious honour, please provide as much information to support your nomination as possible. All nominations will be screened by an independent panel who then make the final assessment and decision.

As always the successful candidate should not be aware that this is happening, so discretion is required.
